What a Tribute!

What a happy foregathering of our friends at the new store yesterday!

It was an occasion we shall remember until we are old and gray.

Were you here?

Did you notice Pennsylvania's statesmen, business and professional men—and the rest of her sons who exert their individual efforts in maintaining the spirit of old Connellsville?

What a tribute for a business which inspires neither romance, eloquence nor poetry! Extremely unusual, we say, and something which makes us think we are somebody.

It isn't in the best of taste to analyze their reasons for coming. Anyway we are so proud of it all—so grateful for the presence of our friends—so pleased with this mark of interest and friendship that we really haven't the words to describe the real state of our feelings.

So let us off this time.

We are not good at speech-making, but—

Your Applause Was Great!

Women's Spring Apparel For a General Saving

Such a March as the one that has just passed has not been known for years. All the Winter weather that didn't come in the winter months appeared to be trying to squeeze into the month of March.

Consequently many manufacturers found orders for Spring goods cancelled and goods on their hands April 1st which should have been closed out. We offered our assistance and the outcome is the newest Spring garments for very little prices.

NOW FOR THE FINAL EASTER PREPARATIONS

W-M Co.

AS FURNISHERS of stylish apparel we are prepared to serve you intelligently and satisfactorily. To be served satisfactorily at Easter time is of great importance to those who have planned to join the great yearly style parade. In selecting your Easter gown, hat or wrap you want to feel of all times of the year, that your selection will be, not only exclusive but possess several distinguishing style attributes that will be instantly recognized as the ear marks of good taste.

A great majority of ready-to-wear garments—millinery too, for that matter—proclaim the source of their origin; there's a lack of finished excellence, elegance and workmanship that always suggests to the wearer deficiencies that make one ill at ease.

Whatever you select here you have the satisfaction of knowing it's right in style, superior in finish, and equal to any made to measure apparel.

While these thoughts are a source of satisfaction, there's another strong buying incentive that will appeal to you. The Wright-Metzler Company garments cost no more and often less than inferior productions elsewhere.

Don't put off buying until the last day for although errors are not likely to occur owing to our perfect organization. It is far more satisfactory to us and to you that you should make your selections as early as possible.

WRIGHT-METZLER COMPANY

WRIGHT-METZLER COMPANY

Wright-Metzler Co., Footwear Critically Correct For Easter

There has been many a man and woman remarked to themselves within the past week: "I'll have to get a pair of shoes by Easter."

We wonder if these people thought farther, if they considered that the shoe they contemplate buying within the present week could either "make" or "mar" the pleasure of Easter for them. If they did not consider this, it is nevertheless true; for if they should get a shoe made over an incorrectly shaped last, or, if through the fact that the store they patronized was not equipped with the exact width they required and sold them a shoe too narrow or too wide, or if some kind friend should inform them that the style was incorrect and for many other reasons as potent. It would tend to dampen the exultant feeling that seems to permeate a person when they are sure that their attire is correct in every detail.

The growth of our shoe business is entirely due to the following facts:

- 1st.—Close and critical buying which results in our selling supremacy.
- 2nd.—Our careful selection of leathers which results in the long life of our shoes.
- 3rd.—Our ever watchful and vigilant care as to correctness in every detail of style and workmanship.
- 4th.—That we positively carry over no shoes from one season to another.
- 5th.—We buy direct from manufacturers saving you a large percentage.

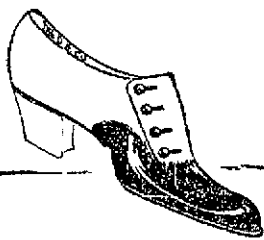

The very bulk of our shoe business testifies to the absolute truth of these five statements which form a quietest of the strongest buying incentives possible to give.

Our shoe section offers every style in every width, every size and made in every shape that the ultra-fashionable world demands.

A Man can buy shoes in lace, button or blucher from $1.00 to $5.00

A Woman can buy shoes in lace, button or blucher from $1.25 to $5.00

A Child can buy shoes in lace, button or blucher from 25c to $2.50

A Profusion of Easter Novelties

Our basement store is full of Easter favors and new and novel things for Easter entertainment. The hostess who expects to entertain during the Easter season would be saved a great deal of worry by a visit to this Easter store. Then, the unrivaled collection of chicks, rabbits, eggs, baskets and the like are corners of joy to the children and cause our big basement to take on almost a Christmas air with its abundance of child-like attracted hither by the wealth of Easter toys that are so alluring to childhood. Price range is satisfying and broad enough to adapt itself to almost any purse.

Rabbits 5c to $2.50

A Wonderful Collection of Women's Waists

Again and again we are told by customers that this showing of women's waists surpasses any they have ever before seen in this city.

This lavish variety includes all the different sorts of waists, taffeta silk, chiffon and China silk, the crepe de chine, then a wonderful stock of lace waists, silk lined. A collection of lingerie waists that is unequalled in the entire coke region and an almost unlimited variety of the practical waists for every day wear. Perhaps the largest immediate demand is for the beautiful silk waists for Easter wear. These we show at prices ranging from

Reasons for the Pre-eminence of Wright Metzler Co., Clothing

Those familiar with clothing trade facts recognize as a masterful accomplishment the tremendous growth of the Wright-Metzler Company clothing business during the past two years. Men do not pass by several good clothing stores and come up to our second floor without a cause.

Strong decisive, positive causes exist; reasons that preclude any peradventure. They are best known by and frequently the despair of our strongest competitors.

There are always special features, extra handwork at some points, inside staying done with higher grade interlining so that permanent shapeliness is secured without the unpleasant stiffness of cheap starched linings. FORMAL OPENING HELD

The New Home of The Aaron Company Is Now Complete.

THEIR IMMENSE BUILDING

The Six Story Edifice Is Largest in the State to Be Occupied by a House Furnishing Establishment—Description of Its Interior.

The formal opening of the immense furniture house of the Aaron Company was held yesterday and last night although the firm moved into their new home seven weeks ago. The large six story structure is now complete in every detail, and is one of the largest and most modern furniture houses in the State. Every detail looking toward the convenience and accommodation of patrons of the store has been attended to and nothing is left to be desired in the general plan of the building from basement to roof.

The visitor enters one of the grandest doors and is at once in the immense room on the ground floor with its interior of all styles and descriptions filling up most of the available floor space. To the right is a elevator elevator of the most approved model and view from the rear is the elaborate oak staircase which gives another mode of access to the floors above. The two lobbies, display windows take up a good bit of space, or one of the necessities of the furniture business is plenty of room for display. In the rear are the offices of the company which are arranged in a convenient manner. There are the private offices of Mr. Aaron, the bookkeepers and cashiers' offices, and rooms for the collector, advertising agent and shipping clerk.

The first four stories of the building are on practically the same plan but the different departments into which they are divided make each different from the other. The fifth and sixth floors are not finished as yet because the others for they will be used for storage purposes, and goods in which there is no need of demand. Much of the repair work will be done on this floor also.

The descent by way of the stairs leads the visitor through a series of magnificent, rare and carpeted of all descriptions, and prices. In the rear of the second floor is the sewing and cloak room which is separated from the rest of the floor. This room is large enough to accommodate a large number of workmen and also a store of numerous fixtures necessary to the purchase of his business as well as to the four lights on a switch and four switches on each floor. In addition to the are lights there are hundreds of incandescents, which attract and glisten from every niche and corner.

The shipping department has been arranged to meet every conceivable emergency. The shipper's office opens into the spacious loading room where three wagons can be loaded at once.

At the same time it is possible for goods to be taken to the wagons of any one of the business.

In the basement of the building can be found the mail and locker rooms of the employees, as well as the two immense lobbies used to house the pumps. The elevator machinery for the operation of the elevators is also in the basement.

It is one feature more than an ordinary building, but one is the excellent building facilities. On each floor there are elevators which run night and day and with the improvement of the

A private telephone system has been installed in the building, and the necessary lines for the central office, and other lines on each floor, as well as a travellers' office.

The exterior appearance of the building is in keeping with the club or hotel interior. A massive entrance has been constructed, and the immense display windows and capped by a magnificent dome of plate glass.

The store would be a credit to any city, and is one of the largest furniture houses in the State. It is the only house of its size in Western Pennsylvania to be occupied by a firm in the house and business, and is a living monument to the business and industry of the Aaron Company.

It is perhaps the best evidence of American prosperity that the United States has become the greatest flower buying nation on the globe. The flower trade reaches its apogee at Easter and during the week preceding the joyous holiday millions of dollars are expended for potpourri luxuries which at this season of the year are regarded as necessities by a large proportion of our population. As in other lines of activity there is a disposition to make Uncle Sam independent of all the rest of the world in the matter of flowers. For instance, take the case of Easter lilies. Some years ago nearly all our Easter lilies were imported in either bulb or bud form from Bermuda. Now a considerable portion of the embryos of purity which go into the market each Easter are raised on American soil.

Although the city of Chicago is generally accounted the chief rose and carnation market, owing to the great rose and carnation farms near the Windy City there is no reason to dispute the claim that New York is now the world's great flower market. It is estimated that the city of New York annually consumes $10,000,000 worth of flowers. It is the product of the city's flower industry that the city's flower industry has been characterized by a number of fortunes have been made by many of the planters in the trade. One retailer who has made a fortune in the trade is a man who has been in the trade for many years. He has been in the trade for many years and has made a fortune in the trade. The Easter Egg Rolling on the White House Lawn

MORE than 20,000 children swarmed in one and also and color on a green carpet of 100,000 brilliant hard eggs and perhaps 50,000 adult spectators. There are the chief participants in the novel spectacle of the annual egg rolling carnival which takes place every Easter Monday in the President's big back yard at Washington. There is no frolic anywhere in the United States, and probably none anywhere in the world, like this spring merrymaking on the Square grounds of the presidential mansion.

The monster egg rolling fest is a heritage which has been handed down from generation to generation of children at the national capital. Just when and how it originated no person seems to know, but tradition declares that this old juvenile romp originated in a foreign custom, which was altered and elaborated in character after it was transplanted to the city on the Potomac. A few years ago the annual egg rolling took place on the grassy slopes that fall away from the United States Capitol building, but the grounds of the Executive Mansion, at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue and there has remained ever since. Indeed, the young stars guard this privilege of playing in the President's yard once a year as a sacred right and when a few years ago some official proposed that the custom be abolished it met with a wall of protest that shook the foundations of social and political Washington. It is the thing of the carnival at the big gathering on the day following Easter Monday. The thing is not looked exclusively to the pastimes wherein the colored eggs are an all important adjunct to the President's luncheon. It is open to all children rich and poor alike, and a lot of the little visitors who have come are provided with a picnic lunch. The festive playthings spend the entire day applying the eggs playing with their small hands. The eggs are of various colors and are used to play a game of rolling the eggs down the lawn. The game is played by rolling the eggs down the lawn and seeing which egg rolls the farthest. The game is played by rolling the eggs down the lawn and seeing which egg rolls the farthest.

How Lincoln Pardonned Condemned Soldiers

The following paper was read by Col. J. K. Baisley at the Appomattox Day celebration of the Connellsville veterans at the Young House on Monday evening:

"I thought, Mr. Allen, when I gave my Benjie to his country, that not a father in all this broad land made so precious a gift—no, not one. The dear boy only slept a minute, just one little minute, at his post. I know that was all for Benjie never dozed over a duty. How prompt and reliable he was! I know he only fell asleep one little second—he was so young, and not strong, that boy of mine! And now they shoot him because he was found asleep when doing sentinal duty. Twenty-four hours, the telegram said, only 21 hours. Where is Benjie now?"

"We will hope, with his heavenly Father," said Mr. Allen soothingly. "Yes, yes; let us hope. God is very merciful."

"I should be ashamed, father," Benjie said, "when I am a man, to think that I never used this great right arm," and he held it out so proudly before him for my country when it needed it. "Pussy! I rather than keep it at the plow!"

"Go, then go, my boy," I said, "and God keep you!" God kept him, I think, Mr. Allen, and the former repeated these last words as if, in spite of his reason, his heart doubted them. "Like the apple of his eye," Mr. Owen, doubt it never."

Blossom sat near them listening with blanched cheek. She had not shed a tear. Her anxiety had been so great that no one had noticed it. She had occupied herself mechanically in the household cares. Now she answered a gentle tap at the kitchen door, opening it to receive from a neighbor's hand a letter. "It is from him," was all she said.

"It was a message from the dead," Mr. Owen took the letter, but could not break the envelope on account of his trembling fingers, and held it to read Mr. Allen with the helplessness of a child.

The minister opened it and read as follows:

"Dear Father: When this reaches you I shall be in eternity. At first it seemed awful to me, but I have thought about it so much now that it has no terror. They say they will not bind me nor blind me, but that I may meet my dear like a man. I thought, Father, it might have been on the battle field, for my country, and that, when I fell, it would be fighting gloriously. But to be shot down like a dog or a cowardly beast, that is the neglect of duty! O, father, I wonder why the very thought does not kill me! But I will not disgrace you. I am going to write you all about it, and when I am gone you can tell my comrades. I cannot now."

"You know I promised Benjie Carr's mother I would look after her boy, and when he fell sick I did it all I could for him. He was not strong when he was ordered back into the ranks, and the day before that night I carried all his luggage, beside my own, on the march. Towards night we went in on the double quick, and though the baggage began to feel very heavy, everybody else was tired, too; and as for Benjie, if I had not lent him an arm now and then he would have dropped by the wayside. It was all tired out when we came into camp, and then it was Benjie's turn to be sentry, and I would take his place; but I was too tired, father, I could not have kept awake if a gun had been pointed at my head; but I did not know it until—well, until it was too late."

"God be thanked!" interrupted Mr. Owen reverently. "I knew Benjie was not the boy to sleep carelessly at his post."

"They tell me today that I have a short reprieve given, given to me by circumstances—time to write to you, our good colored nurse, for Benjie, father! He only does his duty. And does not lay my death up against Benjie. The poor boy is broken-hearted, and does nothing but beg and entreat to let him die in my stead."

"I can't bear to think of mother and Blossom. Comfort them, father. Tell them that I die as a brave boy should, and that, when the war is over, they will not be ashamed of me, as they must be now. God help me! It is very hard to bear. Goodby, father! God seems near and dear to me; not at all as if he wished me to perish forever, but as if he felt sorry for this poor, sinful, broken-hearted child and would take me to be with Him and my Saviour in a better, better life."

A deep sigh burst from Mr. Owen's heart. "Amen!" he said solemnly. "Amen!"

"Tonight in the early twilight I shall see the cows all coming home from pasture and precious little Blossom standing on the back stoop waiting for me; but I shall never, never come! God bless you all. Forgive your poor Benjie!"

"Late that night the door of the 'back stoop' opened softly, and a little figure crept out and down the foot path that led to the mill. She seemed rather flying than walking, turning her head neither to the right nor the left, looking only now and then to heaven, and folding her hands in prayer. Two hours later the same young girl stood at the mill depot watching the coming of the night train, and the conductor as he stooped down to lift her into the car wondered at the tear-stained face that was upturned toward the trim lantern he held in his hand. A few questions and ready answers told him all, and no father could have cared more tenderly for his own child than he for our little Blossom. She was on her way to Washington to see President Lincoln for her brother's life. She had stolen away, leaving only a note to tell where and why she had gone. She had brought Benjie's letter with her. So good, kind heart like the President's could refuse to be misled by it. The next morning they reached New York, and the conductor hurried her on to Washington. Every minute now might be the means of saving her brother's life. And so, in an incredibly short time Blossom reached the Capitol and hastened immediately to the White House.

The President had just received himself to his morning task of overlooking and signing important papers, when, without one word of announcement, the door softly opened and Blossom, with downcast eyes and folded hands, stood before him.

"Well, my child," he said in his pleasant cheerful tones, "what do you want, so bright and early in the morning?"

"Benjie's life, please, sir," faltered Blossom.

"Benjie? Who is Benjie?"

"My brother, sir. They are going to shoot him for sleeping at his post."

"Oh, yes, and Mr. Lincoln ran his eyes over the papers before him. "I remember. It was a fatal sleep. You see child, it was at a time of special danger. Thousands of lives might have been lost for his culpable negligence."

"So my father said," replied Blossom gravely, "but poor Benjie was so tired, sir, and Benjie was so weak. He did the work of two, sir, and it was Benjie's night, not his. But Benjie was too tired and Benjie never thought about himself, that he was tired, too."

"What is this you say, child? Come here, I do not understand," and the kind man caught eagerly, as over, at what seemed to be a justification of an offense.

Blossom went to him; he put his hand tenderly on her shoulder and turned up the pale anxious face toward his. How tall he seemed! And he was the President of the United States, too. A dim thought of this flashed through Blossom's mind, but she told her simple and straightforward story, and handed Mr. Lincoln Benjie's letter to read.

He read it carefully. Then taking up his pen wrote a few hasty lines, and rang his bell.

Blossom heard this order given: "Send this dispatch at once."

The President then turned to the girl and said: "Go home, my child, and tell that father of yours, who could approve his country's sentence, even when it took the life of a child like that, that Abraham Lincoln thinks the life far too precious to be lost. Go back, my child, tonight, Benjie will need a change after having so boldly faced death. He shall go back with you."

"God bless you, sir," said Blossom; and who shall doubt that God heard a registered request.

Two days after this interview the young soldier came to the White House with his little sister. He was called into the President's private room and a strap fastened on his shoulder. Mr. Lincoln then said: "The soldier that could carry a sick comrade's baggage and die for the act so uncomplainingly; and who was well of his country." Then Benjie and Blossom took their way to their green mountain home. A crowd gathered at the mill depot to welcome them back, and as father Owen's hand grasped that of his boy, tears flowed down his cheek, and he was heard to say fervently: "The Lord be praised!"

AIR-BRAKING SLOW.

Pennsylvania May Be Rushed to Equip.

All Cars by July 1. To be in a position to abide by its own regulations with respect to the equipment of all rolling stock with airbrakes, the Pennsylvania lines, both east and west of Pittsburgh, may be compelled to increase their shop forces at various plants during May or June. From a motive power officer of Pennsylvania it was learned that a number of cars yet remain to have airbrakes attached, and unless some haste is entered in this work the company will not have all its cars airbraked by July 1, the date set for having all rolling stock on the entire system equipped with airbrakes. That this would be done, and furthermore, that after January 1, 1907, no cars not airbraked will be received from other lines for hauling over the Pennsylvania lines was decreed by the general managers last summer.

The unforeseen volume of traffic in the past 10 months has made it impossible to get the cars to the shops as rapidly as desired and expected. Cars, which would ordinarily have been kept in the shops for thorough overhauling and for attachment of airbrakes, have been sent out on the road again as soon as the repairs directly responsible for their condemnation to the shops could be completed. Other cars that would, under normal conditions, have been sent to the shops for general repairs have been kept in operation as long as they were not too defective to be used.

Bad Roads Close School. As an instance of the deplorable condition of the roads in Unity township, Westmoreland county, it is worthy of note that on an entire week, not a single student answered present at the school at Hickory Cabin school. The teacher, Miss Margaret Osborne of Latrobe, was at the school every day from last Monday until last Friday, ready to teach, but during the five days not a single boy or girl appeared.

SOME LARGE PUMPS.

was that they wanted them. Mr. B. F. Boyls immediately had plans prepared and descriptions drawn of the pumps now being shipped with the estimated cost attached and the contract was awarded to the Young Pump Works without any quibbling.

From early December up until the present time forces of men have been kept at work upon these pumps along with the many orders that have been crowding the company. Night and day the works have been in operation and many of the power tools in the shop have only been closed down to repairs or in cases of necessity. The pumps that are now being shipped from the plant are for the purpose of circulating water upon the docks of the Port Wayne Company and keeping them cool. The plant is one of the largest in the west and an immense flow of water is necessary to keep many of the motors, dynamos and other electrical apparatus from burning.

Every part of the construction of these large pumps from the drawings to the finished pump upon the car was done by the plant. Many pipes and castings passed through the various departments of the works before they were completed, assembled and tested. These tests were made a few days ago before representatives of the company, Thomas Elliott, formerly of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Connellsville Street Railway Company, being one of those present.

The representatives of the Western company expressed themselves highly gratified with the demonstration and congratulated the management upon the splendid work that was turned out. The company is building a pump that is at present the reverse of the pumps above noted. Instead of being of large capacity at the water end, it has an immense steam cylinder for power purposes. The water end is 20-inch and the steam cylinder is 36-inch, which gives it an immense power capacity. It is being built for the Dunbar Furnace Company and will be ready for shipment within the next few weeks.

MAP OF COAL REGION.

Is Invaluable For Reference and Gives Holdings of All Companies.

A very complete map of the Monongahela river coal region has been prepared by N. P. Hyndman of the Consolida Building, Pittsburg, and The Courier acknowledges the receipt of a copy. It is coal region's map, a singular map having been reworked in 1906 by C. T. Palmer, but the copy right was assigned to N. P. Hyndman and the revised edition has just been issued.

The map gives complete detailed information of the region from Pittsburg south to the West Virginia line and gives each farm a list of the tract of land to be located by him. It is owned by J. V. Thompson and associates of Uniontown, 100,000 acres by the Pittsburg Coal Company, 34,000 acres by the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal & Coke Company, 18,000 acres by J. G. Paterson, and associates and 22,000 acres by the Pittsburg-Buffalo Company. With lesser holdings by other companies. The map includes the railroads and the rivers, streams, etc., and is a map that will prove invaluable to many persons.

Hymene Cures Catarrh in Natural and Rational Way.

No dangerous drugs or alcoholic concoctions are taken into the system when Hymene is used, as the treatment is ready, brought through the nasal pocket inhaled that comes with every breath, the balsamic fluid of Hymene penetrates to the most remote cells of the nose, throat and lungs, it kills all catarrhal germs, leading the irritated mucous membrane and effecting a complete and permanent cure. No medicine taken into the stomach can possibly reach the remote cells of the nose, throat and lungs, it gives immediate relief that follows the use of Hymene. A few days' treatment is usually all that is necessary to show how quickly this remedy will cure catarrh.

So successful has Hymene been in the cure of catarrh among A. A. Clark's customers, that he sells it under a positive guarantee that it costs nothing unless it gives satisfaction. The complete outfit sells for one dollar, while extra bottles can be obtained for 50 cents.

FROM THE PREFACE

"In every situation General Lee was a great, a dominant figure. The character of Lee has been somewhat lost sight of in the study of his career, but it fairly glows with all that is high and noble and true. The Bayard of the South exhibits the characteristics of the Christian gentleman to the full. His is a personality to be studied, to be followed, to be loved. In his greatness and in his simplicity he is an inspiring inspiration to true manhood for all America—the world even."

The Patriots

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "The Southerners," etc.

A War-time story in all its aspects. It opens with a chapter in the life of Lee, woven around the hour in which he decided to take up arms for Virginia and the Southland.

There is a dual love story—a vein of the most tender and sweetest sentiment running through the pages.

TALKS OF VESUVIUS.

Signor Vincent Muoi's Home at Pompei, Near the Volcano.

THE CITY OF NAPLES IS SAFE

From Complete Destruction Although Many May Be Killed and Property
May Be Devastated—Little Town
the Worst Sufferers.

Signor Vincent Muoi, the Italian artist, spent a short time in the city of Naples yesterday afternoon, on his way from Markleton to Uniontown, from which point he will leave Saturday for New York. While here he met a Courier reporter and talked cheerfully about Mt. Vesuvius and the terrible eruptions that are now spreading death and havoc in Sunny Southern Italy.

"Our family owns a very pretty home at Pompei, about 25 miles south of Naples and less than that distance from the over-throwing Vesuvius. At the present time I suppose the roof of our home is covered with cinders, but I do not believe that Pompei is in danger of destruction although the press reports put it in direct line of the volcano's wrath."

Lava from Mt. Vesuvius can never reach Naples, that is an assured fact from the historical records of the great upheaval 75 years after the birth of Christ when the volcano broke out in its most terrible and awful manner. The lava went to the walls of the city and the houses were covered with cinders, rocks and the various elements that were belched forth from the crater, but the lava of nature prevented the destruction of the town and the lava rolled seaward into the Bay of Naples and the Gulf of Salerno. Thus even if the eruption of this great historical period is repeated at this time the same thing must of course occur. Naples, the beautiful, Naples the city that all Italians are anxious to claim as their birthplace, will never be destroyed by towering, threatening Vesuvius. Vesuvius, entire can blow up and Naples will sit on her little mound and watch her wash her way to the sea. Thousands and millions of dollars damage may result.

"But of the towns southward in the direction of Salerno Bay, destruction fearful and terrifying always hangs over them. Torre Annunziata, Pompei, my home place, Massalubronse, Sorrento, Salerno and all Campania and many other towns lie in the path of the molten lava, the terrifying cinders and the red hot stones that come from the crater. It is impossible to protect houses against the terrible downfall of the burning missiles and the houses are soon a burning mass when once they strike it. It is about 21 miles by rail from Naples to Salerno, and through-out this distance the line is dotted with small towns, varying in size from 8,000 to 10,000 souls. Naples has a population of 600,000. It is easily to be seen that thousands can meet their death instantaneously in towns of this size. I believe, however, from communications that I have had from Italy, that the reports of deaths in the American press have been exaggerated, although I have been notified that great numbers perished."

When asked why the people resided in a country fraught with such danger Signor Muoi replied: "Because it is the richest tillable soil in all the world. Vesuvius made it such areas and those that have reaped the harvest for years are now reaping death, feeling secure that Vesuvius would never again cause such destruction as it did once upon a time. Where once was solid rock Vesuvius placed the most fertile soil, though it took ages to do so. In the valley south of Naples, leading from Vesuvius to the Bay of Naples and the Gulf of Salerno, there is no more fertile spot in the world and I venture to say that anything that is grown anywhere else in the world can be grown right here. The products of this section not only go to Naples and Rome, but to every part of Europe and America."

WHY

Connellsville People Should Take Vind.

WHY

Our well known druggist, Mr. F. E. Markell, says: "We do not believe there is a man, woman or child in Connellsville who is not in need of some preparation. Vind, will not only protect you from disease, but it will also keep you healthy and strong."

Continued Mr. Markell: "For centuries cod liver oil has been regarded as the grandest of all healthful agents for weak human strength and vitality, but on account of the heavy, musty and disagreeable oil which enveloped its curative properties, few could take it with any benefit."

"In Vind you will get in a concentrated form every one of the curative and strengthening elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cod fish, and without a single drop of sugar or other artificial ingredients."

"Vind is not a patent medicine, and you know what you are taking, as evidenced by the fact that it is made on the back label of every bottle."

"Vind is guaranteed by over two thousand of the best druggists of the United States to create an entire new body for the run-down, tired, and debilitated, weak, sickly women and children, and clear a severe cold."

Hunt's Shoes

There is a vast distinction between a cheap shoe and a good shoe. A cheap shoe is cheap but a very short time, that's when you buy it at a less price than a good one. A good shoe costs a little more than a cheap one, but will often outwear two pairs of cheap shoes, thus making a good shoe the cheapest to buy. We may not have the cheapest shoes, but we do claim to have as good shoes as can be sold in town.

A SHOE ARGUMENT

A comparison will convince you that the Delsarte is the best shoe 3.50 for women in town.

TO CONVINCE a man or woman through the newspaper that our $3.50 shoes is the peer of any equally priced shoe in the market is not easy. We prefer to have you come in here, look at the shoes, examine them, try them on—walk around the store with the shoes on your feet and, well by that time you will be handing over the money. We have great confidence in these shoes and it troubles us to know that you are paying your good money elsewhere and not getting as good a value.

We have just the shoe you want whenever you want it.
